

As I watch you continue to grow and change
I sit here and remain the same
You have held me close since the beginning of your days
And now I fear you will leave me to decay

Older you are now and the less I get to see
It is only at night where I feel it is just you and me
Your greatest comfort in the hardest of times
Have been soaking up your tears since you still read nursery rhymes

I was always your first option to go to when times were tough
Now you rely on people who don't even try to give enough
I never thought growing up meant leaving me behind
But if you ever need me just know I am not hard to find

I think back on all the good times we had, when I was truly your bestfriend
Maybe it is the idea of growth that I just can't comprehend
Been by your side from childhood to now
No matter how much you grow I will always be your Little Stuffed Cow
